Call to worship: Psalm 62 verses 5 to 8

Find rest, O my soul, in God alone; my hope comes from him. He alone is my rock and my salvation; he is my fortress, I shall not be shaken. My salvation and my honour depend on God; he is my mighty rock, my refuge. Trust in him at all times, O people; pour out your hearts to him, for God is our refuge. Amen.

Our opening hymn by John Bell and Graham Maule of the Iona Community uses an old Gaelic melody from the Isle of Lewis to praise the God who keeps his promise, praise the Son who calls us friends. Hymn number 28, 'Jesus calls us here to meet him'.

1. Jesus calls us here to meet him

As, through word and song and prayer,
We affirm God's promised presence
Where his people live and care.
Praise the God who keeps his promise;
Praise the Son who calls us friends;
Praise the Spirit who, among us,
To our hopes and fears attends.

2. Jesus calls us to confess him

Word of life and Lord of all,
Sharer of our flesh and frailness,
Saving all who fail or fall.
Tell his holy human story;
Tell his tales that all may hear;
Tell the world that Christ in glory
Came to earth to meet us here.

3. Jesus calls us to each other, Vastly different though we are; Creed and colour, class and gender Neither limit nor debar.

Join the hand of friend and stranger;
Join the hands of age and youth;
Join the faithful and the doubter
In their common search for truth.

Let us pray.

Eternal Word who created the universe and gave life to everything that lives on this world, you revealed your glory through the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Amazing God, whose beloved Son came as a helpless baby, born to ordinary parents in the stable of an inn, rather than as a prince in a palace, it was your intention that Jesus should experience our lives and know us intimately. He came as Immanuel – God with us and among us – not remote from us. Heavenly Father, you gave him to the world even though you knew that he would suffer and die to save us from the powers of sin and death. Almighty God, accept our praise and adoration for all that you have been, are and shall be and for your boundless, everlasting love. Amen.

In our prayer of confession, when I say 'Lord have mercy', please respond with 'Lord, forgive'. Let us pray once more.

God of mercy, hear us as we confess our sins.

For the sin that has made us slow to learn from Christ, reluctant to follow him, and afraid to bear the cross: Lord, have mercy, Lord, forgive.

For the sin that has caused the poverty of our worship, the formality and selfishness of our prayers, our neglect of fellowship and the means of grace, and our hesitating witness for Christ: Lord, have mercy, Lord, forgive.

For the sin that has led us to misuse your gifts, evade our responsibilities, and fail to be good stewards of your creation: Lord, have mercy, Lord, forgive.

For the sin that has made us unwilling to overcome evil with good, tolerant of injustice, quick to condemn and selfish in sharing your love with others: Lord, have mercy, Lord, forgive.

Have mercy on us, O God, in your constant love; in the fullness of your mercy blot out our offences, wash away all our guilt and cleanse us from our sin. Create in us a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within us. Give us the joy of your help again and strengthen us with a willing spirit.

Loving heavenly Father, you hear and answer our prayers. In your grace you proclaim our sins forgiven and you call us to follow you. May we do so in the power of the Holy Spirit, so we may serve you and our neighbours with joyful, faithful hearts in the name of Christ the One true Light. Amen.

We shall say the prayer that Jesus taught us.

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will be done; on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

Our next hymn is by the prolific hymn-writer Revd. Fred Pratt Green. Number 345, 'Christ is the world's light, Christ and none other;'

1. Christ is the world's Light, Christ and none other;
Born in our darkness, he became our Brother.
If we have seen him, we have seen the Father:
Glory to God on high.

2. Christ is the world's Peace, Christ and none other;
No one can serve him and despise another.
Who else unites us, one in God the Father?
Glory to God on high.

3. Christ is the world's Life, Christ and none other;
Sold once for silver, murdered here, our Brother –
He, who redeems us, reigns with God the Father:
Glory to God on high.

4. Give God the glory, God and none other;
Give God the glory, Spirit, Son and Father;
Give God the glory, God in us, my Brother:
Glory to God on high.

In our prayers of intercession when I say, 'O Lord, hear our prayer', your response is 'When we call, answer us'. Let us pray.

Merciful and Loving God, as we review last year, we see so much brokenness amid the beauty of this world, not all of which is the result of COVID19. The Media makes us aware of the huge number of people who suffer as a result of our inability to love our neighbours as we love ourselves. We turn to you in prayer, asking you to bring healing and wholeness, for although so many situations lie beyond our power, to you all things are possible. Certainly, Lord, we want to seek the well-being of people whose lives touch ours, so we ask you to grant us the courage, faith and compassion we need to bring healing rather than hurt to our neighbours.

O Lord, hear our prayer: When we call, answer us.

Unlooked for, Christ comes. To shepherds, watching their sheep through the long, dark night, he comes with the glory of the angels' song and in the humility of the manger.

Loving God, we pray for our community: may we answer your call to serve you through the mission of our churches, by supporting the work done by food banks, street pastors, the Salvation Army and any organization that serves the poor and vulnerable in our society, or by supporting Christian Aid, All We Can or other relief organizations that address the grievous poverty in the Developing World.

We pray for the churches in our area and for the World Church. Guide us through this pandemic, so we can serve our communities and support the poor and broken-hearted. Help us to find new ways, to not only preach Good News but to live it day by day and to be a light of hope in a gloomy world. In the midst of our everyday lives, surprise us with glimpses of the glorious, humble love at the heart of existence. O Lord, hear our prayer: When we call, answer us.

Searched for, Christ comes. To the wise and powerful, star-led to Bethlehem, seeking a king, he comes, child of Mary, crowned with meekness, worthy of every gift.

Loving God, we pray that the leaders of the world learn to seek the ways of peace and to negotiate and compromise instead of using force against opponents. We pray that the leaders of countries where people are persecuted for their beliefs, race or gender, will turn and seek mercy and justice in their dealings. Remember in your compassion, all victims of warfare, terrorism and oppression and grant them healing in body, mind and spirit. Guide our leaders and us with your light to the true wisdom of justice and peace, of freedom and respect for every human life. O Lord, hear our prayer: When we call, answer us.

Longed for, Christ comes. To Anna and Simeon, whose days are lived in faithful expectation, he comes, a new life to the old, a living prophecy of hope.

Loving Lord, guide those who govern us and their advisors that they may adopt policies that will bring us safely through this pandemic. Give them the courage and wisdom, so they do what is right whether or not it is popular. We ask your blessing upon the NHS, keyworkers and scientists as they strive to heal us and keep us safe. As we begin a New Year in lockdown, we feel disempowered, confused, unsure of what to pray for. Hear and answer the groaning of our spirit and grant us the wisdom and courage we need to face an uncertain future, with hope grounded in your redemptive love.

O Lord, hear our prayer: When we call, answer us.

Prayed for, Christ comes. To men and women, girls and boys, crying out in darkness, pain and loneliness, he comes, baptized, at one with us, our Saviour, healer and friend.

Heavenly Father, hear our prayer for people who are sick in body, mind or spirit, for all who are suffering long-term effects of coronavirus and those who are living with a dementia, their families, friends and carers. May they receive the care and support they need at this time of crisis and may they experience your presence in their need, so they find healing, peace of mind, renewed strength and comfort.

We pray for everybody who is facing unemployment, addictions, broken relationships, loneliness and especially bereavement at a time we usually associate with joyful celebration. Help us to be sensitive to the needs of our neighbours, so we can offer friendship and practical support to them. In a time of silence, we pray for everyone know who needs your help..... Loving Lord, hold them in the warmth of your love, so they experience your healing, comfort, hope and peace. O Lord, hear our prayer: When we call, answer us.

Unlooked for and searched for, longed for and prayed for, you come to us now as you have come to your people in every age. Abba, Father God, bless us, our families and our friends. Fill us with the love and grace of Christ Jesus, so that our thoughts, words and deeds offer peace and love to people around us and bring glory to your holy name. Amen.

Our next hymn was written by John Bell and Graham Maule of the Iona Community and, like many of their hymns, it is set to an old Scots ballad, 'Let us haste to Kelvin Grove, bonnie lassie, O', which is why the tune is called 'Kelvingrove'. I gather that the ballad was a bowdlerised version of the original one which was most unlikely to have been sung in a Victorian parlour on a Sunday afternoon – or any other time! Hymn number 673, 'Will you come and follow me'

1. Will you come and follow me

If I but call your name?

Will you go where you don't know

And never be the same?

Will you let my love be shown,

Will you let my name be known,

Will you let my life be grown

In you, and you in me?

2. Will you leave yourself behind

If I but call your name?

Will you care for cruel and kind

And never be the same?

Will you risk the hostile stare

Should your life attract or scare,

Will you let me answer prayer

In you, and you in me?

3. Will you let the blinded see

If I but call your name?

Will you set the pris'ners free,

And never be the same?

Will you kiss the leper clean

And do such as this unseen,

And admit to what I mean / In you, and you in me?

4. Will you love the ‘you’ you hide
If I but call your name?
Will you quell the fear inside,
And never be the same?
Will you use the faith you’ve found
To reshape the world around
Through my sight and touch and sound
In you, and you in me?

5. Lord, your summons echoes true
When you but call my name.
Let me turn and follow you,
And never be the same.
In your company I’ll go
Where your love and footsteps show.
Thus, I’ll move and live and grow
In you, and you in me.

The Old Testament reading is Jonah chapter 3 verses 1 to 10

Then the word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time:

“Go to the great city of Nineveh and proclaim to it the message I give you.” Jonah obeyed the word of the LORD and went to Nineveh. Now Nineveh was a very important city—a visit required three days. On the first day, Jonah started into the city. He proclaimed:

“Forty more days and Nineveh will be overturned.”

The Ninevites believed God. They declared a fast, and all of them, from the greatest to the least, put on sackcloth. When the news reached the king of Nineveh, he rose from his throne, took off his royal robes, covered himself with sackcloth and sat down in the dust. Then he issued a proclamation in Nineveh:

“By the decree of the king and his nobles: Do not let any man or beast, herd or flock, taste anything; do not let them eat or drink. But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth. Let everyone call urgently on God. Let them give up their evil ways and their violence. Who knows? God may yet relent and with compassion turn from his fierce anger so that we will not perish.”

When God saw what they did and how they turned from their evil ways, he had compassion and did not bring upon them the destruction he had threatened. Amen.

Our Gospel reading is Mark chapter 1 verses 14 to 20

After John was put in prison, Jesus went into Galilee, proclaiming the good news of God.

“The time has come,” he said. “The kingdom of God is near. Repent and believe the good news!”

As Jesus walked beside the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the lake, for they were fishermen.

“Come, follow me,” Jesus said, “and I will make you fishers of men.”

At once they left their nets and followed him. When he had gone a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John in a boat, preparing their nets. Without delay he called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men and followed him. Amen.

Cecil Frances Alexander, the author of our penultimate hymn, was a strikingly beautiful bishop's wife, saddled with a man's Christian name as a result of a quaint Irish custom, so it is not surprising that her family and friends usually called her "Fanny"! Hymn number 250, 'Jesus calls us! O'er the tumult'.

1. Jesus calls us! O'er the tumult

Of our life's wild restless sea,
Day by day his clear voice soundeth,
Saying, "Christian, follow me."

2. As of old apostles heard it

By the Galilean lake
Turned from home and toil and kindred,
Leaving all for his dear sake.

3. Jesus calls us from the worship

Of the vain world's golden store:
From each idol that would keep us,
Saying, "Christian, love me more."

4. In our joys and in our sorrows,

Days of toil, and hours of ease,
Still he calls, in cares and pleasures,
"Christian, love me more than these."

5. Jesus calls us! By thy mercies,

Saviour, may we hear thy call,
Give our hearts to thine obedience,
Serve and love thee best of all.

Sermon: "Come with me and I will teach you to catch people." Mark 1:17

Mark's gospel is full of urgency: when you read it next, see how many times 'at once' or 'immediately' occur, encouraging those who listened to commit themselves to Jesus while they had time. The calling of Andrew, Simon, James and John suggests poetic licence in the men's response, for we know that Simon was married – later in Mark chapter 1, Jesus healed Simon's mother-in-law – so I doubt if he abandoned his wife, any more than James and John would have left Zebedee in the lurch. Otherwise, what kind of men would Jesus have chosen? I am confident that Simon and Andrew made sure that their family was provided for, while James and John almost certainly hired local fishermen to help their father to keep the family business going. What Mark advocated was to commit one's heart NOW, to prepare to follow before enthusiasm waned, or friends and family undermined the impulse to follow. There is a danger that, if we put off doing something for the time being, we may never actually do it.

Sometimes, of course, people may know that God is calling them to serve, but choose to try to run from the call. The Book of Jonah deals with such a character, but while there was a prophet, Jonah, in about 700 BC, the book was written two hundred years later. It is most likely to have been a rabbinic tale of how, if we are called by God, we should answer that call, whatever our doubts or fears – not run in the opposite direction! Here's a brief background to the setting of our reading.

In 721BC, Jews' northern kingdom, Israel / Samaria, fell to the Assyrians. Some Israelites were exiled as slaves, while their conquerors brought Gentile settlers to Israel as a result of which many Israelites intermarried and practised a mixture of Jewish and heathen faiths, which was the source of the Jews' and Samaritans' intense hatred. It was also partly why Galileans were looked down upon by Judeans. The Book of Jonah was written before the Babylonian exile in 597BC, so Nineveh, the capital city of Assyria, was viewed with abhorrence by Judeans, until Babylon became the focal point of their hatred.

Jonah was called by God to proclaim the Lord's judgement upon Nineveh, a city so huge it took him three days to go around its walls with his message of imminent destruction. Before this happened, Jonah realised that his visit would be like entering a lions' den, so he tried to flee to Spain, which is where the big fish or whale entered the narrative! After his deliverance, Jonah realised he'd better do as God directed, so he travelled to Nineveh to declare the city would be destroyed in 40 days. He probably expected to be seized and killed by the godless Ninevites, so imagine his feelings when the unpalatable message was taken to heart by the people! Even the king made a public show of repentance and issued this proclamation: 'Do not let any man or beast, herd or flock, taste anything; do not let them eat or drink. But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth. Let everyone call urgently on God. Let them give up their evil ways and their violence. Who knows? God may yet relent and with compassion turn from his fierce anger so that we will not perish.'

Although the image of animals wearing sackcloth seems absurd, such a practice actually existed five or six centuries before Christ was born. The significant thing is the people repented, which means far more than saying sorry. Prophets used the word SHUB for repent, but shub means to turn around 180 degrees, from evil towards God, to return to the Lord. Notice how the Ninevite king was calling for more than a token show of contrition: he called for a real change of heart. The total repentance of the Ninevites prompted God to change his mind and he spared the city, much to Jonah's disgust! Nevertheless, because he answered God's call, Jonah changed the hearts of a pagan people who Jews believed were irredeemably condemned.

We may not be called to do anything as dramatic as saving an apostate city, but we are challenged to take Good News to an increasingly secular society. You may ask how we can possibly do such a thing. This is one of the worries that made me hesitate to answer my call to preach until Deaconess Jane Day challenged me to trust Jesus to empower me. After all, in our gospel reading Jesus said, "Come with me, and I will teach you to catch people." When we answer Christ's call, the Holy Spirit will guide us in what we do as well as what we say, for it is no use speaking about God's love, if others can't see it in our lives, in the way we treat one another. Equally, there is no point talking about God's salvation if we consider non-Christians irredeemably lost and despise them, in the way that Jonah (as a Jew) felt about the Ninevites.

Jesus taught his disciples by example that repentance – turning back to God – often follows acts of generosity or kindness to the sinful, unclean and marginalised in his society. He offered them dignity and self-esteem by the way he treated them. More than that, he offered them hope of a better life, if they followed him. Jesus taught his followers that nobody lies beyond God's grace: neither Gentiles, nor occupying Romans, nor even Samaritans. He didn't harangue them, but opened the way for them to follow, if they chose. The hymns of the Wesleys proclaim that salvation is offered to all people, not a select few. When Jesus died on the cross at Calvary, he died for everybody, not just for us.

Christ calls us to follow him now, to commit ourselves to his service wholeheartedly, to live in such a way that, if he returns in glory today or tomorrow – and we do not know when he will come again – we will not be unprepared. He calls us to live in the world, without being judgmental, but upholding kingdom values; to enjoy life fully, whilst keeping our virtue. May our lives be a conduit through which God's love flows freely, so people may see something different in us that they'd like to share, which is the point when we can guide them to our Lord. Amen.

We close our worship with a hymn by Jacqueline Jones that challenges us. Jacqui is a contemporary Christian singer-songwriter, originally from South Africa, more recently from New Zealand, who was based in the UK for 5 years. She now lives in Christchurch, NZ and is enjoying the role of vicar's wife! Hymn number 662, 'Have you heard God's voice; has your heart been stirred?'

1. Have you heard God's voice; has your heart been stirred?

Are you still prepared to follow?

Have you made a choice to remain and serve,
Though the way be rough and narrow? *Chorus:

Will you walk the path that will cost you much
And embrace the pain and sorrow?

Will you trust in One who entrusts to you
The disciples of tomorrow?

2. Will you use your voice; will you not sit down
When the multitudes are silent?

Will you make a choice to stand your ground
When the crowds are turning violent? *Chorus:

3. In your city streets will you be God's heart?
Will you listen to the voiceless?

Will you stop and eat, and when friendships start,
Will you share your faith with the faithless? *Chorus:

4. Will you watch the news with the eyes of faith
And believe it could be different?

Will you share your views using words of grace?
Will you leave a thoughtful imprint? *Chorus:

We will walk the path that will cost us much
And embrace the pain and sorrow.

We will trust in One who entrusts to us
The disciples of tomorrow.

Benediction

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Love of God and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit be with us all now and for evermore. Amen.
